Are You Ready to Implement Common Core Standards?

If you think your district needs further preparation to implement the common core state standards (CCSS), you're not alone.

If you think your district needs further preparation to implement the common core state standards (CCSS), you're not alone. According to a poll conducted by the Leadership and Learning center, an organization providing solutions to districts and school leaders, 96 percent of respondents reported they were unprepared to implement the standards in their district. The poll consisted of 115 thorough responses from district leaders and, while far from scientific, sheds light on some specific concerns facing administrators.

As we move forward with implementation many administrators have expressed concern for how are we going to implement effectively. The attached articles (Implementing the Common Core State Standards: A Guide for Elementary Principals & Implementing the Common Core State Standards: A Guide for Secondary Principals) will provide administrators with no-cost takeaways, talking points and action steps that school leaders and counselors can begin to put into practice in their schools today.
