Coconino County Moves to Phase 4 of its Re-Entry Plan

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. — On June 5, 2020, the Coconino County Board of Supervisors approved a COVID-19 Re-Entry Plan for County operations. The plan provides guidance to protect customer and employee health and safety. Today, Coconino County entered Phase 4 of its Re-Entry Plan, 15 months after the COVID-19 pandemic began.

Phase 4 is marked by County buildings being open, however, some County buildings will have metered access at entrances to lobbies through call boxes to allow departments to manage the number of people in small spaces for the health and safety of the public and staff.

During the COVID-19 response, the County re-imagined service delivery to ensure ongoing access to important services, while maintaining the safety of staff and the public. Many of the lessons learned during this time have been integrated into service delivery moving forward, such as remote delivery, online options, and services available by appointment. Residents seeking services are encouraged to visit the County website at coconino.az.gov for the most current information.

Coconino County does not require fully vaccinated individuals to wear a mask in County buildings, except the Jail, Juvenile, and the Health and Human Services clinic, where masks are required per CDC guidelines. Unvaccinated individuals are asked to mask while inside County buildings. The County continues to support an individual's decision to mask when already vaccinated based upon a person's own comfort level and preference.

"Coconino County has seen a decline in COVID-19 cases thanks to the diligent efforts of our communities. Vaccination remains one of our most important tools to help stop the pandemic and each day more people make the thoughtful decision to receive the safe and effective COVID-19 vaccine," said Director of Health and Human Services, Kim Musselman.
